Course Objectives:

- Grow your confidence in your leaders

Confidence:

Competence is often less of a problem than confidence.

An underrated aspect of doing anything hard is believing in yourself.

When action seems hard, narrow the gap between where you are and what you focus on.

Action Creates Both Confidence & Momentum.

Micro-Learning:

Microlearning is a practical approach to leadership development that involves small yet crucial leadership behaviours. When put together, these behaviours form the building blocks of successful leadership.

- Micro-learning takes up minimal time, making it accessible to all
- It emphasizes practical application, resulting in the transfer of knowledge into new behaviours
- It is a cost-effective alternative to traditional leadership training courses

Micro-Learning boosts the confidence of first-time leaders by teaching new behaviours and providing support.
